RESPONSE: See Response to Data Request No.3.

5. Please state whether any employee or agent of Grain Belt has represented to anyone not an employee or agent of Grain Belt that Grain Belt's proposed line has the support of the Audrain County Medical Center, in Audrain County, MO, or words to that effect.

RESPONSE: Without waiving its previously stated objection, Grain Belt Express responds that while the precise language provided to this publication may not be exactly the words used, the premise of the quote accurately represents the conversation and is further outlined in the Application, witness David Berry's direct testimony and schedules, and witness Anthony Wayne Galli's direct testimony and schedules filed in Case No. EA-2014-0207.

11. If the answer to item 8 is yes, please state the basis for his remarks about 500 megawatts of low-cost energy being introduced, and state where that power will be introduced and how.

If this request does refer to data request no. 10, Grain Belt Express refers the Complainant to the Application, witness David Berry’s direct testimony and schedules, and witness Anthony Wayne Galli’s direct testimony and schedules filed in Case No. EA-2014-0207.

12. Please provide a copy of all written and electronic correspondence (including emails) from and after February 1, 2014, between any employee or agent of Grain Belt and any of the following: an organization named or called the Mizzou Energy Action Coalition (MEAC); any member of said organization; Sarni Tellatin; and an organization named or called Coal Free Missouri. (If any such document does not show the name of the sender and recipient, and the date of the correspondence, please provide that information separately).

RESPONSE: Without waiving its previously stated objection, Grain Belt Express refers Complainant to Exhibit A, attached to these Responses.

13. Please provide a copy of all internal written and electronic correspondence (including emails) from and after February 1, 2014, between employees and/or agents of Grain Belt related to Exhibit 1 or the drive by Coal Free Missouri or MEAC to collect student signatures in support of the Grain Belt project.

RESPONSE: Without waiving its previously stated objection, Grain Belt refers Complainant to Exhibit B, attached to these Responses.

Let me know what you would like to do-

Let me know what you think - it is fine for us to still go to Coffee Zone.

I can also google map it.

See you at 10!

Hi Samil

I wanted to touch base to follow up on our meeting last week. I hope you had a nice weekend! I saw all the great coverage on Mizzou students blocking Westboro Baptist this weekend and it made me so proud to be a Tiger!

I have attached the Missouri supporters letter that we talked about, and you can feel free to tweak it a little to make it more student, or action oriented if you like. I have attached it as a word document. We are also currently working on a more succinct student centered call to action flyer/postcard that they could quickly sign. Something that is colorful and not as dull as the letter. If you have any thoughts on what might be best, what would capture the most signatures, let me know, we are happy to utilize any feedback or suggestions you may have on that front.

I also wanted to let you know that I will be reaching out to your colleagues at Webster and MSU this week to see about setting up meetings on their campuses as well. Hopefully, they will be interested in having us come and speak.

I am looking forward to speaking to your larger group on Feb 27th, and to the signature campaign!! I know you were going to discuss with a few other folks, so keep me posted and I will plan to bring you some good SWAG on Feb 27th.

Let me know if you have questions or need anything from me!

Take Care,

Cari

Hi Cari!

I apologize for the late reply - we are still super excited to have you this Thursday and I've extended the invite to other environmentally focused organizations on campus. Everyone that I have mentioned this project to has been super excited to learn more about it! It's a great thing.

As far as swag goes... I think that buttons are the most effective means on MU's campus. Stickers for laptops or books are also great. Numbers-wise... Maybe a couple hundred total? Is that too much?

I'll take a look at the letter and let you know if we would like to make some changes. As far as effective signature slips targeted towards students... anything that gets the message across in a concise and interesting manner; anything that can be fit onto half sheets of paper would be appropriate. Normally, students are hurrying off to class when we ask them to stop and sign something, so the most important part is the actual talking; usually they'll just sign!

Best regards and see ya soon! Also let me know if you need anything when you are in Columbia - food, lodging, etc.

Hi Sami! Excited to come and speak tonight. Do you by chance have a rough final head count? Also, I need the location for tonight.

I can't remember discussing it, but I may have written it down when we met face to face, and I'm on the road this week and left all my notebooks at home! Feeling very vulnerable at the moment.

Excited to see you tonight at 7!

Hi Sami! I hope this finds you well. I wanted to touch base with you to thank you again for having me last night and for your organization being so motivated to work for wind energy in Missouri!! I am so looking forward to collaborating, you guys are such a great group of young people. And to the celebratory pizza party in April! I know you guys are gonna kick butt and totally blow that goal out of the water!

I have attached the Grain Belt facts document that I think could help guide the talking points for you all. If you need more please let me know, or if you think that these will be helpful.

I have also attached a petition template. I talked with my boss and he thinks that petitions will be fine in instances like this weekend and class wraps(is that right?) where you think that you can get a bunch of sigs really quickly and efficiently. Obviously the letters are best, but petitions are the numbers game, right? So, check out the template and if it looks good, awesome and run with it! If you have any suggestions then feel free to throw them my way! I'm rusty on my design of this stuff, so feel free to make suggestions or changes. I included it as a word for convenience. Hopefully this is quick enough to get you all going on the festival this weekend.

For the table, we have a wind and transmission prop that is pretty cool. It is in Houston but we can bring it up this week if you guys think that a prop would be helpful. I can touch base with someone as early as Monday and my boss suggested it because its pretty eye catching. It is like maybe 1 ½ ft or 2ft tall and white, art deco looking and pretty cool. Let me know if you don't think it would be a hassle to lug and we will totally loan it if it could get more folks to pay attention to the table. We also will come and join you for a few sessions once you nail down the schedule, when I mentioned that to my boss, Mark, he was super excited! He also can't wait for Shakespeares. His a KU guy BTW so try and go easy on him when he's there. Also, for the "Call to Action" webpage, it will be live and ready on Monday morning for you all to start utilizing. There is a section for organization, so Mizzou in that section would capture your sigs, or just having Columbia in the City section. I know you all will be keeping track as well, but that was the metrics suggestion from my web girl in Houston.

Finally, I am setting up a meeting with Kris on Thursday and very excited! I am so glad that we can all collaborate and really feel like this is the beginning of a very exciting March!

Have a great weekend and let's talk soon. Let me know if you need anything and feel free to reach out anytime.

Thanks!!!

Hi Sami! Thanks for sending these over. I can tell you more about our business structure and financing. The opposition tries to undermine our business because we are a development company and not a traditional utility. Our business model is solvent because of investors for the development portion. This is common with many startups. You get capital to help get you off the ground and then return the capital once you begin to make money.

But I will go into more detail about this with you when we chat early this week.

Thanks for sending the sigs and I will give you a call on Tuesday afternoon!!

Hi Sami! Welcome back! I hope you had a good break. I wanted to touch base and let you know that one of our GIS specialists will join me on Thursday to talk with you all about routing and explain the process. Jay is a routing guru so I'm excited that he can join. Then we can all go for pizza after! I also wanted to let you know that I have signed up for a booth at the Columbia earth day festival. You mentioned that there is a Mizzou event that week as well, do you have the info for that? Let me know and I will get a booth situated for that as well. Thanks for helping me out with identifying these events. We can discuss more about earth day weekend when we're together on Thursday.

Finally, I wanted to get your thoughts on something. Matthew staulbaumer wrote a VERY inaccurate letter to the editor to the Maneater. I was curious if you or someone else in the group (maybe Kelsey?) would be willing to sponsor a response to that for publication. There were gross inaccuracies and we would really love to address his misinformation and spread the positives. What do you think?

This fair will feature organizations such as Dogwood Solar, Renew Missouri, MEAC, Sustain Mizzou, Environmental Leadership office and others and will be a purely educational event where students will learn different realms of sustainability all in one place and will be rewarded with Buck's ice cream after they have completed the table. If you are at all interested in this event please let me know! We'd love to have you!

Warm Regards,

Hey Cari!

So I just wanted to get back to you about our executive decision regarding a response to the Maneater article done by the anti-Clean Line collectives.

For the time being, we would prefer to post-pone a formal response for it would more serve to make the fight 'us against them' instead of 'us for the environment'. It shifts the focus in the wrong direction if we retaliate, so to speak, quickly after their statements have been made. It is also not going to be very beneficial for anyone for us to entertain the ludicrous allegations they are making against Clean Line - it will only serve to indirectly validate their complaints. Hopefully our motives are clear, but feel free to ask if my explanation was in anyway confusing.

We intend wholeheartedly to continue with our on-the-ground push for Clean Line awareness and show our support for the project. We also talked about placing our own Op-Ed in the Maneater in support of the project and further discuss our efforts with Clean Line on MU's campus - but later down the line. Then the article would have the opportunity to stand on its own as a positive, confident, information piece, as opposed to a response to an series of poorly constructed arguments that are not worth our time.

Let me know how all of this sounds to you. Thanks so much again for letting us be apart of the Clean Line project, and for all you do!

Best,

Hey,

The meeting with Coal Free Mizzou went really well. They have changed their name to Missouri Sustainability and are interested in branching out to other causes besides divestment. Sami loves what we are doing and is really excited to get everyone involved. We are presenting to them on Feb 27th and she is doing a smaller gathering of 20 or so from around CoMO, folks who she thinks will drive action around our cause. She said that everyone is looking for something to get fired up and action oriented about and that they would love to help us. They also have Webster and MSU chapters, so I have reached out to those folks as well.

Sami would like to put on a month long letter signing campaign. I gave her our letter of support and she thinks they may be able to help us reach a target of 500. She is thinking that they will set up a table in the MIZZOU commons a few days a week for the month of March! I am tasked to bring her SWAG and lots of it, which I will do on Feb 27th. She figures, based on their past student sig gathering efforts that they will have no trouble getting lots of letters. She said that testifying might be an issue if the hearings are over the summer, but if not then we should be able to drive her students to those as well. They have a pretty large latent membership, and about 50 or so active members. They are also very, very motivated for renewable energy!

More to come on this front for sure....

Ms. VanAmburg,

Hello, my name is Covey Son. I am a staff writer at The Maneater, which is the student-run publication at the University of Missouri.

I am currently writing a story about the letter writing campaign, sponsored by the Mizzou Energy Action Coalition, to support the Grain Belt Express project. To get some additional information about the project from Clean Line Energy rather than a secondhand source, I was referred to you by Samantha Tellatin, the president of MEAC.

If you are interested in a brief phone interview about the project, please let me know. My deadline is this Friday, but as long as we can fit the interview into that timeframe, I will do my best to accommodate for your schedule. You can best reach me via email, but please feel free to give me a call as well and I will answer as promptly as possible, given that I am not in a lecture.

Thank you for your consideration,

While monitoring social media, I noticed that the opposition has been targeting various student groups at Mizzou including the Mizzou Energy Action Coalition. Hi everyone. To update you, I have talked with Mizzou and they are SOLID. They think it's great that there's a dialogue between opposition and our project but that ultimately individual preferences of the landowners shouldn't override the need for wind in Missouri.

These are some supportive folks. The bad weather here in MO over most of March prevented successful tabling so we only have around 200 support letters/signatures(Sami is counting them this weekend and sending them our way by Sunday night) but they continue to push out on social media so hopefully we will start to see movement on the website.

We are moving forward with our Earth day plans to be on the mizzou campus and partner with them in the festivities. We will go to Mizzou in early April and have a pizza party to discuss the plans and their needs. Earth day and the weekend after should be a HUGE signature event for us. Louisa, can we set a call next week to discuss your vision for materials at this event?

They also want us to do a small seminar on how you route a transmission line. So much cool stuff in the pike.

I am pleased that they are standing strong. This was a nice way to start my weekend

Thanks

Ally and Diana, we have until Monday to get Karl all of the letters. I sent around the cover letter with Karl's changes yesterday. The letters and cover letter should be 1 pdf. I was thinking we should arrange by type and then date, what do you think? We have two from legislators so those should go up front, followed by other elected officials and so on as described in the cover letter.

Good morning friends! Have you heard about the Grain Belt Express Project? A privately funded company, Clean Line Energy, is working to garner Missourian support for their project to construct a direct current transmission line from a windfarm in Southwestern Kansas to Eastern Missouri and beyond. For Missouri, this will bring 3500 MW of wind energy, a renewable energy, to our fuel profile, bumping us up on our way to achieve carbon neutrality and decrease greenhouse gas emissions. Additionally, "the construction of the transmission line could create nearly 4,000 construction jobs and 70 permanent jobs for maintaining and operating the line.... the project will add nearly $800,000 in property tax revenue for the affected counties."

The issues associated with the construction of this project are few - mainly that some reluctant land owners face eminent domain, but will be completely reimbursed for the land that is used by Clean Line to hold a DC line. What do YOU think?

Check out this local article that was just published in the Maneater: <http://www.themaneater.com/stories/2014/3/18/grain-belt-express-garners-coal-free-mizzou-support/>

And if you want to support the construction of the line, please give your support by March 25th by heading to the second link I've included and signing your online support form! This link will also take you to a page where you can learn more. If you do decide to support this, please list Mizzou Energy Action Coalition or University of Missouri - Columbia as your "Organization"... MEAC will get a kickass pizza party if we meet our goal of getting 1000 signatures (of which we are 1/5 of the way there!).

Thank you for tuning in and have a lovely hump day!
