BEFORE THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION OF THE STATE OF MISSOURI

In the Matter of Laclede Gas Company's)File No. GT-2017-0123Tariff to Revise Natural Gas Rate Schedules)Tariff No. YG-2017-0060

RESPONSE TO STAFF'S MOTION TO REJECT TARIFF SHEET

COMES NOW Laclede Gas Company ("Laclede" or "Company"), and for its Response to the Staff's Motion to Reject Tariff Sheet ("Motion") states as follows:

1. On October 25, 2016, Laclede submitted to the Commission a proposed Original Tariff Sheet No. R-56 ("Tariff Sheet") that seeks to revive a temporary one-time component (the "30% Component") of its low income energy affordability program. The Commission had previously approved a form of the 30% Component in 2010, 2011 and 2013. The purpose of the Tariff Sheet is to implement a proposal to help customers maintain or restore their utility service this winter heating season in the wake of a delay in the availability of energy assistance funding. Specifically, the Tariff Sheet would authorize Laclede to spend and recover in its next rate case up to $400,000 to help eligible customers<sup>1</sup> who would otherwise have to pay 80% of their arrearages to restore or maintain service under the Cold Weather Rule ("CWR"). Instead of paying the full 80%, eligible customers would receive a bill credit equal to 30% of their arrearages, provided that a payment and/or pledge equal to 50% of their arrearages was made by them or on their behalf by a participating Community Action Agency. The amount of the credit would not exceed $400 per customer or $800 for a registered elderly or registered disabled customer.

&lt;sup>1</sup> Customers whose household income is less than or equal to 150% of the Federal Poverty Level.

OPC, the Missouri Division of Energy and the United Steelworkers Local 11-6 all support the Tariff Sheet.

3. On October 28, Staff filed the Motion in which it argued that the Commission should reject the Tariff Sheet not because it constituted unlawful single issue ratemaking, but because it "significantly deviates" from the programs previously approved in 2010, 2011 and 2013, and may impact other programs within the low income budget. Laclede respectfully submits that this year's proposed 30% Component does not significantly differ from versus previous years' programs. The differences arise from special circumstances this year in which, for the first time, a delay in energy assistance threatens to leave some low-income customers without access to the resources necessary to restore utility services as the winter heating season begins. Laclede adds that it does not believe the limit of $400,000 proposed for the 30% Component will impact its other low income programs.

4. Staff repeatedly warns that, compared to previous 30% Component programs, Laclede's proposal will "slash" benefits to elderly, disabled and other low-income customers, by decreasing the maximum credit per customer from $1,000 to $800 for elderly and/or disabled low-income customers, and from $500 to $400 for other low-income customers.<sup>2</sup> At the same time, Staff criticizes Laclede for increasing the programs budget from $150,000 to $400,000. In reacting to the delay in crisis energy assistance, Laclede's goal was to make the 30% Component potentially available to more customers. Laclede accomplished this by increasing the amount of the budget while slightly decreasing the maximum payout to any one customer. Laclede submits that the reduced limits are reasonable because the relatively low commodity prices and a far warmer than normal winter last year reduced the average outstanding balance for customers who are likely to be eligible for energy assistance this winter. In addition, Laclede is conscious that the low-income budget is limited to $600,000 and again does not believe that the 30% Component program will cause an issue with that limit.

5. Staff stated that it would not object to a 30% Component program that has the same terms as the previous programs that were approved by the Commission. While the terms of those programs would have the advantage of following a well-traveled path, there is no indication that such terms would be more appropriate in these unique circumstances as the terms proposed by the Company herein. In fact, the Company believes the proposed terms in the Tariff Sheet better serve this year's customers.

6. Finally, Staff is critical of Laclede's request to expedite approval of the program. Laclede would note that it sent the proposed Tariff Sheet to the parties on October 11, and was frankly surprised by Staff's adverse reaction to both the Laclede and MGE tariff filings. In the past, Staff has been supportive of programs that help customers in cases such as this.

7. In summary, a need has been created by a delay in energy assistance that will leave some low-income customers without access to the resources necessary to restore utility services as the winter heating season begins. Approval of the Company's tariff proposal will not be a panacea, but it would help hundreds and perhaps even thousands of customers in a way that has been found to be both lawful and reasonable in the recent past. For all of these reasons, the Commission should approve the Company's Tariff Sheet and deny Staff's Motion to Reject it.

WHEREFORE, for the foregoing reasons, Laclede respectfully requests that the Commission issue its Order approving the Revised Tariff Sheet for service rendered on and after November 4, 2016.

Respectfully Submitted,

Laclede GAS COMPANY
