CASE NOS. ER-2022-0129 AND ER-2022-0130

1	I.	INTRODUCTION
2	Q.	Please state your name, title, and business address.
3	A.	Lisa A. Kremer. Consultant for The Office of the Public Counsel (OPC). 705 Briarwood Court, Jefferson City MO. 65109.
5	Q.	Are you the same Lisa A. Kremer that filed Direct and Rebuttal Testimony in these cases?
7	A.	Yes.
8 9	Q.	Would you explain which company or companies you are referring to when you address Evergy in this testimony?
10 11 12 13	A.	In this testimony, my use of the name Evergy refers to both Evergy Metro (the utility previously known as Kansas City Power & Light Company) and Evergy West (the utility previously known as KCP&L – Greater Missouri Operations Company). All references made to "the Company or Companies" is intended for both Evergy Metro and Evergy West together.
15	Q.	What is the purpose of your Surrebuttal Testimony?
16 17 18	A.	The purpose of my Surrebuttal Testimony is to address the Rebuttal Testimonies of Company witnesses: Mr. Caisley and Ms. Winslow. My Surrebuttal Testimony will also provide follow-up raised in my Rebuttal Testimony regarding customer information.

	Lisa A	outtal Testimony of A. Kremer No. ER-2022-0129 & ER-2022-0130
1	Q.	What matters specifically will your Surrebuttal Testimony address?
2	A.	My testimony will address the following topics:
3	•	Anonymous or Simulated Customer Account Access
4	•	Customer Education
5	•	Customer Information
6	ANO	NYMOUS OR SIMULATED CUSTOMER ACCOUNT ACCESS
7	Q.	What was OPC's original request of Evergy regarding permitting the Office to have
8		access to a sample of anonymous existing or simulated customer accounts?
9	A.	As stated on page 4 lines 3 through 16 of my Direct Testimony, the purpose of OPC's
10		request was to "permit the Office of the Public Counsel the ability to observe, understand
11		and experience what Evergy customers experience as they are served by the Companies
12		including changes to those experiences." My testimony went on to state:
13		Presently, an Evergy CIS customer log-in barrier exists for OPC, making it
14		unable for the office to have access to specific customer-facing web-portal
15		screens and content such as:

² Lisa Kremer Direct Testimonies Case Nos. ER-2022-0129 and ER-2022-0130, page 4 lines 6 though 16.

My Testimony went on to recommend the Companies "evaluate the creation of simulated customer portal logins for OPC or permit OPC to utilize some existing customer portals to provide it the ability to observe and experience what Evergy customers experience as they are served by their utility." If permitted use of existing customer portals OPC suggested the omission of customer personally identifiable information on records OPC would observe.⁴

Q. What did Mr. Caisley say regarding OPC's request for CIS access?

A. On page 4 lines 14 through 21 of his Rebuttal Testimony, Mr. Caisley indicated he understood the desire for OPC and Staff to have a good understanding of the customer experience on the Company's web portals. He went on to say that Evergy had previously offered to provide a scheduled demonstration of the Company's customer portals to OPC but that it would be a challenge to accommodate every scenario that could possibly exist in the Company's system. However, the Company would produce a thorough demonstration with advanced notice.

Q. What did Mr. Caisley further say regarding OPC's request?

A. Mr. Caisley indicated that while the Company understood OPC's request it was not "practical, cost-effective or acceptable from a business risk and financial reporting perspective to create a simulated account with manufactured customers and customer data including meters, usage, payments, etc. within our production billing system." Mr. Caisley offered several other reasons for objecting to the request including that the Company had its technical IT and systems administration teams and business owners of Evergy's digital customer experience team research OPC's request and it was not feasible.⁵

Other objections to the request by Mr. Caisley included that "It is not a proper business practice to create a simulated account within a platform actively used by the business for customer interactions, billing and financial reporting purposes. It could easily create havoc with our reporting and account processes."6

Mr. Caisley also indicated that OPC's request was highly unusual, and the Company was not aware of anywhere in the U.S. where a regulatory stakeholder had requested and been granted access to a utility's customer-facing portals. In addition, Mr. Caisley stated even if such access could be done, it would "pose significant cost to create and become a manual burden to the Company."8

Q. Did the Company provide any support for its statements that OPC's request was "highly unusual" and would pose "significant cost[?]"

OPC data request numbers 5067, 5068, and 5069 inquired of such support and cost A. estimates to which the Company objected by saying the documents may be covered by attorney client privilege, are overly broad, unduly burdensome, calling for speculation, etc. However, although the Company objected to the data requests the Company did offer some information in response to OPC's inquiries. (Please see schedule LAK-S-1 which includes the Company's objection and its responses).

Specifically, in response to data request 5067, which requested support for statements that OPC's request was "highly unusual," the Company indicated that the data request was not necessary to determine if the systems are "used and useful and serving customers." I will address this comment in subsequent paragraphs but determining whether the system is "used and useful" was not the purpose of the request.

The response went on to state that Mr. Caisley has served as the co-chairperson of the EEI Executive Advisory Committee (EAC) on Customer Service for more than six years and had extensively discussed customer information system implementations, customer facing authenticated portals etc. with members of the committee and has never heard of a noncustomer or outside party being provided simulated access to Company systems. Mr. Caisley has also been a member of the Marketing Executive Conference (MEC) where he served as President as well as the Chairperson of the Curriculum and Education Committees. The Company's response went on to say that Mr. Caisley had never heard of a request such as OPC's for access to Company customer portals. The Company's data request response also requests that if I have knowledge of any investor-owned utility within the country that has provided such access to please let the Company know.

Regarding the Company's indication that OPC's request would "pose significant cost" the Company states that the cost information isn't necessary to evaluate whether the systems are "used and useful and serving customers." The Company indicated in its response to OPC Data Request 5068 that OPC's request could "easily exceed $100,000 in internal and external labor, programming and other costs."

- Q. Does the Company appear to misunderstand or misinterpret OPC's purpose for making the request for anonymous or simulated customer account access?
- A. Yes, I believe so. Mr. Caisley on page 3 lines 16 through 22 of his Rebuttal Testimony indicates that OPC does not offer a witness with "experience or expertise in designing, evaluating, testing or implementing authenticated customer portals nor does any OPC witness have education in digital user experience design, implementation and testing."

This statement implies that OPC's request was to evaluate the Company' CIS from an IT (Information Technology) perspective which is not the case. The Company also implies in responses to OPC data request 5067 and 5068 (as stated above) that OPC has made the request for limited CIS access to determine whether the system is "used and useful." The Company's response to Data Request No. 5068 indicates that "Nowhere in its testimony has OPC offered specific deficiencies or disallowances that would justify the creation of a simulated customer account and log-in or in the creation of the detailed cost estimate requested in this DR."

The purpose of OPC's request for limited CIS access, as stated in my Direct Testimony, is to "observe, understand and experience" what Evergy customers experience by the utility that serves them including changes to the portal.⁹ Mr. Caisley addresses customer experience extensively in his Direct Testimony and it is that very desire that OPC has to experience what Evergy customers do in a limited capacity. I did not indicate in my Direct Testimony that OPC's purpose for CIS access was to "design, evaluate or test" customer portals or to determine if the system was "used and useful." Likewise, my testimony did not point to deficiencies or disallowances as a purpose for OPC's CIS access request.

As the consumer advocate office, OPC does have expertise and an inherent interest in the service, experience, and rates that impact Missouri regulated utility consumers and such tenets are foundational to the mission of the Office. Further, testimony by OPC witness Ms. Angela Schaben demonstrates OPC has staff that has information technology experience even though IT expertise to "design, evaluate or test" the Company's CIS system is not the purpose of OPC's request and is not required for the purpose the request was initiated. Ms. Schaben also offers additional testimony regarding the informational technological side of OPC's request.

Finally, a system costing approximately $295 Million¹⁰ seems as though it could accommodate limited access in some capacity to the Consumer Advocate including by way of anonymous or simulated account access.

- Q. The Company implies in its response to OPC Data Requests 5067 (please see Schedule LAK-S-1) that since the Company knows of no other request among other utilities such as OPC has made in this case for CIS access that the request is not justified. What is your response?
- A. Utilities, their regulatory bodies, their managements, governing statutes and rules as well as their system investments, programs, rate structures, and customer bases are all different. The difference among customers is acknowledged by the Company on page 12 line 20 of Mr. Caisley's Direct Testimony where he states: "All customers are different" and it is logical that all utilities are as well. Comparisons among utilities must be conducted cautiously and with awareness of these numerous differences and the limitations of such comparisons must be recognized.

Whether the Company is aware of any utility that has provided similar CIS access such as OPC is requesting in this case has limited or no bearing, on whether the Company should or should not comply in whole or in part to OPC's request. Further, and as expressed in my Direct Testimony, if a Staff person, Consumer Advocate, or other party is served by a given utility, they already have access to a given utility's customer portals. Such as is the case for many OPC members who live in Jefferson City and are served by Ameren and Missouri American Water company.

- Q. Did Mr. Caisley address OPC's request for Anonymous Account CIS access in his rebuttal testimony?
- A. Not to my knowledge and I hope if it has not done so, the Company considers the potential of this option in contrast to the creation of simulated accounts which the Company has indicated is not feasible and would be too costly. (Please see the Company's response to OPC Data Request 5068 included in Schedule LAK-S-1). On page 5, lines 11 through 22 of my Direct Testimony I suggested a possibility of the Company providing OPC with actual customer accounts with all personally identifiable information omitted.
- Q. Given the Companies' position that it cannot provide OPC CIS access do you have further thoughts or comments?

Yes. First, OPC appreciates Mr. Caisley's offer to provide a thorough demonstration of the CIS system with advanced notice and the internal evaluation he indicates was conducted to determine if OPC's request could be granted. OPC may inquire of the Company for the CIS demonstration Mr. Caisley has offered at some point in the future. However, a one-time demonstration will not permit OPC to experience the changing Company messaging and communications, bill presentations and analytics, and customer experience overtime. OPC will occasionally revisit this topic with the Company in the future in the event something changes that would permit OPC to have the limited CIS access it originally requested. OPC also requests the Company to notify it should the

The Company responded in data request 5068 that OPC's request could "be hundreds of accounts and generating fake customer info is not a feasible way to manage the ask." It was not OPC's intention in any manner for the Company to generate hundreds of accounts.

I will clarify OPC's specific intended request to the following general service accounts for

A. She noted some similarities, differences and opportunities between the Arizona Corporation Commission report and Evergy's Time of Use (TOU) Education. In similarities she pointed to Evergy's EM&V process and the Company's research in how to message and offer TOU rates.¹¹ With regard to differences, Ms. Winslow noted the call center metrics as a primary benchmark in the Arizona Corporation Commission's report and Evergy's focus to encourage customer self-service through on-line enrollment.¹² For opportunities, Ms. Winslow noted that Evergy does not have a model for new customers to present a potential bill comparison based on different rates as well as evaluation opportunities on credit and collection activities related to TOU participants to contrast with standard rate customers.¹³

She had some additional observations that APS had a fixed budget for a short period of time and undefined goals while Evergy's 2018 rate case stipulation and agreement presented specific parameters for Evergy to follow including timing and stakeholder approval for an education and EM&V plan as well as enrollment goals.¹⁴

Ms. Winslow concluded her comment on the Arizona report by saying the Company appreciated the opportunity to learn from another electric utility's experience and she looked forward to continued success in Missouri with new and innovative rate offerings.¹⁵

Q. Do you have any additional thoughts to add to the discussion of TOU education?

A. Yes. First, I appreciate Ms. Winslow's review of the Arizona Corporation Commission's report and her openness to learn from another utility's educational experience. I will comment briefly here that page 7, line 21 of my Rebuttal Testimony begins a discussion of existing customer education needs at Evergy and I believe the parties should work together toward effective education particularly in light of future successful and greater TOU adoption.

CUSTOMER INFORMATION

- Q. On page 13 of Mr. Caisley's Rebuttal Testimony he provides the AMI Benefits to the new Service Disconnect enabled AMI meters and the first benefit listed is "Remote Meter Reading Capabilities Provides Data & Additional Data Opportunities." You also addressed customer information in your Rebuttal Testimony and indicate on page 31, lines 14 through 16 that you were awaiting further discovery on the topic and may update your position in surrebuttal testimony. Do you have any comments regarding the data opportunities Mr. Caisley mentions and any further observations regarding customer data here?
- A. Yes. I believe it will be important to know specifically what types of "data opportunities" are being referred to as an AMI benefit including their relationship to customer data privacy and customer data protection. Also, it is important to know what plans the Company has regarding customer data that are being referred to in this section of Mr. Caisley's testimony and what type of customer consent and customer permission may be required of any additional "data opportunities."
- Q. What are your primary interests around customer information as they relate to Evergy?
- A. My interests on the topic of customer information are to ensure 1) that the Commission's Affiliate Transaction Rule contained in 20 CSR 240-20.015(2)(C) be adhered to. That rule states:

Specific customer information shall be made available to affiliated or unaffiliated entities only upon consent of the customer or as otherwise provided by law or commission rules or orders. General or aggregated customer information shall be made available to affiliated or unaffiliated entities upon similar terms and conditions. The regulated electrical corporation may set reasonable charges for costs incurred in producing customer information. Customer information includes information provided to the regulated utility by affiliated or unaffiliated entities.

Further, 2) that all purposes in how customer information is being used is toward the provision of regulated utility service unless there is clear consent from the customer to use their information in other ways. In addition, 3) that the customer has a clear and understandable means to reverse their consent at any time they determine they no longer want their information shared for unregulated purposes.

Much of my inquiry into the Company's customer information stemmed from the Company's response to OPC Data Request 5060, referenced in my Rebuttal Testimony on page 30 lines 18 through 27 (Please see Schedule LAK-S-2) and its Privacy Policy.

- Q. Page 29, beginning at line 18 and ending on page 30, line 6 of your Rebuttal Testimony begins a section regarding "other observations or concerns" in relation to the Company and customer data. What were you referring to?
- A. The Company's privacy policy within the tab "How We Use Your Information" led to questions, particularly in the sections regarding Company communications with customers about: "products, services, offers, promotions, rewards and events" the Company believed would be of interest to customers as well as "advertisements, content or features that match user profiles and interests, . . . process and deliver contest entries and rewards," and the statement that the company may "link or combine [with] information we get from others to help understand your needs" and to "carry out any other purpose for which the information was collected."
 - I further indicated on page 30, lines 7 and 8 of my Rebuttal Testimony that if all the purposes above were for the provision of regulated utility service my concerns would be assuaged but I was not sure at that time.

Q. Have your concerns been assuaged at the time of this writing?

- A. Yes and No. I will provide the status of my review currently and explain my answer to the question further below.
 - I preface my testimony regarding customer information with indication that matters around the topic are complex and I am not aware of extensive investigatory work having been done in the Missouri regulatory utility area regarding the use of customer information other than the working docket of AW-2018-0393 and the Allconnect-related dockets of EC-2015-0309 and EC-2017-0175. This, given the market value of customer data, and most importantly, the care and protection that should be afforded to regulated utility customer information further supports the recommendation on page 27, line 11 of my Rebuttal Testimony for the Commission's consideration to revisit the Commission's working docket of AW-2018-0393.

Q. What information have you received from the Company that has relieved some of your concerns regarding its treatment of customer information?

A. I have submitted several pieces of discovery to the Company regarding its use of customer information and at the time of this writing am still reviewing and submitting inquiries. I have appreciated the quick turnaround of the Company's responses to OPC Data Request Nos. 5070 through 5080 to aid in my understanding of this topic. At the time of this writing, I continue to submit further inquiries to the Company.

Of positive note is the Company's response to OPC Data Request 5060.3 which inquired around the types of "products, program enrollments, programs, messages," etc that are sent to or marketed to Evergy Missouri customers. The Company's response included: "all MEEIA programs, Solar Subscription, Electric Vehicle Education, and Programs, Time of Use, Rate Education, Financial Assistance programs and Monthly Customer E-mail." Each of these programs are related to the provision of regulated electric service and I have no concerns at this time about them being offered. Further, in response to OPC Data Requests 5071 and 5072, the Company indicates that "The Monthly Customer Email does not ever include promotion or offers of unregulated products or services."

The Company's response to OPC Data Request No. 5060.8 in summary indicates that marketing promotions and messages are sent to customer e-mail addresses who have proactively "opted in to receive news and information" and that customers may "unsubscribe" to be removed from future e-mails. The Company's responses to OPC Data Requests No. 5071 and 5072 refer to the "Monthly Customer E-mail" and at this time I am attempting to be certain that the Company's responses to Data Requests 5071, 5072 and > Data Request No. 5060.8 are referring to the same e-mail received by customers monthly. In addition, the Company's responses to OPC Data Requests 5060.9 and 5060.10 indicate that "Evergy provides customer information to entities in furtherance of regulated utility service pursuant to longstanding practices authorized and/or embraced and supported by this regulatory jurisdiction" which also is of positive note. (Please see Schedule LAK-S-3 for Company responses to OPC Data Request No. 5060.8 through 5060.10).

Q. What is at the center of any further concerns?

My remaining concerns surround the Company's utilization of an entity called Acxiom A. (website: acxiom.com), which I understand to be a data aggregator. A data aggregator is an organization that collects data from one or more sources, provides some processing to that information, and repackages the result in a usable form to provide additional or new insights.

The Company indicated in response to OPC Data Request No. 5060.2 that "Evergy has had an annual contract with Acxiom since 2014 for InfoBase Enhancement & Audience Propensities for select consumer segment information." The response further indicated to see attachment Q5060.2 Acxiom Consumer Segments for a list of the consumer segments (or clusters) Evergy purchases from Acxiom. The 2022 list of customer segments Evergy purchases from Acxiom is attached as Schedule LAK-S-4. "Acxiom customer data is used to determine which products, programs and messages are most relevant to customers."16

I would also like to further comment on the Company's statement, addressed in my rebuttal testimony, that the Company takes the position it has "responsibilities as an owner" for customer information.¹⁷ The Oxford Languages Dictionary defines the word "responsibility" as "having a duty to deal with something or of having control over someone." Given this definition, the Company's use of the word "responsibility" for customer data is somewhat unsettling and I offer here that the Company's "responsibility" regarding customer information is twofold: to ensure the protection of customer information including that it only be used in the provision of regulated electric service and to ensure strict adherence to the Affiliate Transaction Rule contained within 20 CSR 240-20.015(2)(C). The Company has no further "control" over customer information beyond these parameters nor does the Company assume "ownership" of customer information at any time.

¹⁶ Company response to OPC Data Request No. 5075.

¹⁷ Lisa Kremer, Direct Testimonies, Case Nos ER-2022-0129 and ER-2022-0130 page 29, lines 3 through 6.

Q. What specifically are you trying to determine about Acxiom and the Company's use?

- A. At this time, there are a number of things I am trying to determine about the Company's relationship with Acxiom:
 - 1). Whether Evergy receives customer consent before sending aggregated data to Acxiom
 - 2). Why Evergy purchases some of the specific customer segments it does from Acxiom
 - 3). How Acxiom or any of its affiliated or unaffiliated companies or partners may use, provide or sell Evergy customer information outside of the provision of Evergy regulated electric service.

The Company's response to OPC Data Request 5073 (Please see schedule LAK-S-5) indicates that:

"The Acxiom customer segmentation data is not shared with unaffiliated or affiliated parties. Acxiom has a data profile for 85% of individuals in the Evergy territory. Evergy sends customer name and address to Acxiom who then appends the data to each individual customer for Evergy's files."

If the Company is receiving customer consent to send their name and address to Acxiom I do not believe at this time that there is a violation to the Commission's Affiliate Transactions Rule. If, however, the Company has not obtained or is not obtaining customer consent to have their name and address provided to Acxiom I believe there may be an

	Lisa A	buttal Testimony of A. Kremer No. ER-2022-0129 & ER-2022-0130
1		Affiliate Transactions Rule violation. For reference, a portion of the rule in 20 CSR 240-
2		20.015(2)(C) includes:
3		Specific customer information shall be made available to affiliated or unaffiliated
4		entities only upon consent of the customer or as otherwise provided by law or
5		commission rules or orders. General or aggregated customer information shall be
6		made available to affiliated or unaffiliated entities upon similar terms and
7		conditions.
8	Q.	What other matters have your attention regarding the Company's relationship with
9		Acxiom?
10		The listing of customer segments includes 113 different segments by which the Company
11		uses "to determine which products, programs and messages are most relevant to
12		customers." (Company response to OPC DR No. 5060.1.) Some of the segments are
13		understandable but others raise questions regarding their potential value to the Company.
14		Some prompt questions regarding the justification and appropriateness for the regulated
15		utility to have interest in regarding the provision of regulated service, to collect and to pay
16		for on behalf of their regulated customers.
17	Q.	What specific customer segments are you referring to that you question the necessity
18		to collect and pay for?
19	A.	As can be seen in Schedule LAK-S-4, the segmented data includes categories such as but

Of question is why a Missouri regulated utility would need to understand whether a household was a single parent home, or the age of their customers (other than being of legal age to have service in their name), their propensity toward community and charities, their customers' race, their interaction with their elected officials, etc. for the purposes of marketing regulated products and services. The Company's rationale for purchasing this and other types of segregated data from Acxiom remains to be determined. There may be just and logical reasons for the Company's interest in these and other areas, but I believe it appropriate to inquire what those are.

Applying the "front page of the paper test" (also known as The New York Times Rule)¹⁸ can be valuable as a test of reasonableness and of question is how customers would perceive the Company's paid data research (costs presumably flowing back to ratepayers) regarding them in these and other research categories.

When asked in OPC Data Request 5076 about the relevance of certain specific categories the Company provided a more general response that "Evergy uses customer data such as demographic & psychographic data (Gender, Age, Education, Income etc.) to understand the makeup of the customer base for more relevant messaging and programs" The Company's complete response is provided in Schedule LAK-S-6. The Company also provided, in response to OPC Data Request 5077, the broad Acxiom segmentation categories, which is attached in Schedule LAK-S-7. I would further like to know how these categories are used to market which specific services and rates to Missouri's regulated

. While the Company appears to know or is seeking significant information about its customers, there is apparent significant need for basic customer education regarding Company rate plans. Perhaps more Company energy should be spent in those customer service areas.

OPC has made two attempts to organize a meeting with the Company to learn more about the Company's relationship with Acxiom, the data it purchases on its customers, etc. E-mails from OPC were sent on July 29th and August 9th to the Company in an effort to gain such understanding, but as of this writing and to my knowledge, the Company has not responded to OPC's request.

Q. What else may be of question or concern?

As indicated on page 32 of my Rebuttal Testimony, I raised concerns regarding Mr. Caisley's dual roles within the Company as being the Chief Customer Officer for Evergy's regulated side of the house but also for his leadership responsibilities for establishing the strategic direction for both regulated and non-regulated products and services. This inherent conflict of interest may be further heightened in consideration of the Acxiom segregated data the Company receives that Mr. Caisley, in both his regulated and unregulated roles within the Company, would not only have access to but be in a position to direct, control and review summary findings and conclusions. Again, the "front page of the paper test" may provide valuable application in this area.

Q. Please summarize the customer information section of your testimony?

At time of this writing I continue to review the matter of Evergy's treatment of customer information including its relationship with Acxiom, a data aggregator. While some of my earlier concerns have been assuaged, I have identified above remaining areas that I am attempting to review. Regardless of the outcome of my work, I believe the Commission's working docket of AW-2018-0393 should be revisited. The Staff's draft rule provided an important beginning for the direction on the definition of customer information, its use, including the use of data aggregators, such as Acxiom. In my opinion, customers deserve nothing less than a thoughtful and thorough rule making process regarding one of their most valuable assets: their information.
