Case No. TC-2004-0340

Mr. Berlin,

I am writing in regard to Econo-Call, Inc. and the above referenced case for not filing an annual report and annual assessment. It was my intention to have our certification removed with the Missouri Public Service Commission. The company never began operation, never hired employees, has never had a customer and is not certified in any other state. No services from LEC's or wholesale providers were ever obtained. The corporation is a sub S type, and I am the sole owner. Income to the corporation is only through me subcontracting and commissions received from selling other companies products. Econo-Call, Inc. as a long distance provider never got off the ground as costs escalated and profit margin shrank. I have spoken with Sherry in the PSC telecommunications department a few times regarding dissolving our certification and she has been most helpful. I was told that I would not be able to complete the necessary paperwork, but that an attorney would need to be obtained. She did not recommend one in particular but gave me a list of names. I called a few and left messages and voice mails but did not get a response until recently. The cost has been more than I am able to pay at this point.

In the past years my annual reports reflect no income from providing any telecommunications products. We have never had to pay an annual assessment. I apologize to the commission for the effort and cost put forth with Econo-Call being certified. I would dissolve the corporation if not that it is being used to report my income as a contractor. I would greatly appreciate any help in relinquishing certification.
