Oh and this audio clip attachment from Ameren's own website support team will put the validation authentication on if www2.ameren.com is an email address.

Since Ameren will most likely not give you a copy of the audio, I will provide a copy of the audio.

Even Ameren's own website development team concludes that www2.ameren.com is not a valid email address and is a website address, and wouldn't send.

If Ameren wants to continually lie and continue filing delusional stories, so be it.
