

Exhibit B

Key Personnel

Jack N. Beasley is the president and CEO of Victory Communications, Inc., and is a major stockholder in the corporation. Since 2001, he served as treasurer and CFO of TelSon Communications, Inc., and was the chief business and financial advisor to that company. Mr. Beasley graduated from Northwestern State University in 1975 and has 28 years of business experience, mostly in banking and finance. He owned Liberal Loans (with branches in Monroe, Farmerville and Bossier City), and currently owns numerous rental properties in northeast Louisiana, as well as timberland. Mr. Beasley is a former vice president of the Louisiana Finance Association and served as a reserve captain of the police auxiliary in Monroe. He has almost three years' experience in the local access telephone business.

Floyd M. "Mac" Perryman graduated from Louisiana Tech with an engineering degree in 1963. He entered the U.S. Navy, was trained as an electronic resonance specialist and an aviator, and spent two years in Vietnam, flying electronic resonance missions against North Vietnam, China, North Korea and Russia. He left the service in 1968 and went to work for LP&L (now Entergy) as an account representative for commercial and industrial customers. He is experienced in interfacing, contract negotiation, wiring design, service accountability and customer relations. Mr. Perryman retired from Entergy in 1999 to pursue investment opportunities, although he worked part-time as a special projects officer and a member of the board of directors of TelSon Communications. He is the secretary and vice president of Victory Communications.

Donna Pounds graduated with a 4.0 average and highest honors from Southern Tech with a degree in computer programming in 1987. She created the computer system and helped design the computer programs for Howard County, Arkansas in the 1980s. She also worked as computer consultant in Nashville, worked in CMIS (computer management information systems) and wrote several computer management and systems manuals. She has been involved in the telecommunications business since 2000, is a major investor in Victory Communications, and is treasurer of the corporation. She worked bank management (primarily in loans, investments and bonds) for five years prior to graduating from Southern Tech.

Patrick Madise is currently the office manager at Victory and is in charge of customer service. Mr. Madise worked TelSon from November 2001 to September 2003 and was assistant office manager before being promoted. He was a bill auditor and customer service representative for Budget Phones for two years before joining TelSon. He also served as office manager with Credit Merchandise for five years.

Connie Pace was a customer service manager in the credit card and check industry from June, 2000 until the summer of 2003. With a staff of 20, she was also responsible for sales and major accounts, project management, and customer care. She is the executive assistant to the president of Victory Communications and will be responsible for customer care and special projects.

Kelvin A. "Tony" Reagan is director of sales and marketing for Victory. He worked as a sales representative BellSouth and AT&T for six years and for Delta Phones for two years before joining Victory. He has more than eight years' experience in telecommunications.
