Fuel and gas supply connection experts have become increasingly specialized to the point where even gas companies aren't willing to do hook-ups. This is a highly skilled task with an enormous amount of risk and liability. We, as an industry, are currently facing an alarming shortage of certified installers because of the large responsibility they already take on. Endeavor Communities does not believe it is an appropriate ask to put such a hazardous burden on installers, nor would homeowners want someone who isn't knowledgeable being tasked with this responsibility. 10. Assuring all exterior and interior close-up work is completed. This statement is too broad and undefined. For example, many items could be categorized into *see attach
