Dear All,

First, we want to thank everyone who we met in person, spoke to by phone, or exchanged e-mails with over the past year about our energy efficiency study for the State of Missouri. Your contributions, whether data and informational resources or ideas and concerns about energy issues in Missouri, have been invaluable for us in preparing the draft document.

Please find attached our draft report for your review: "Missouri's Energy Efficiency Potential: Opportunities for Economic Growth and Energy Sustainability." Also attached is the list of contacts we are inviting to review the report.

We appreciate any comments or feedback by Monday, June 13th. Please focus your time on identifying substantive questions, concerns, or other feedback as opposed to the style, grammar, or layout. The draft has not yet been reviewed by our editor, so those issues will be addressed later. We would however appreciate corrections of names and references. This study is intended to be a Missouri-based product and as such we want to make sure that all characterizations of organizations, people, and relationships are correct in the final report.

ACEEE is the lead author of this report, however we sought support from other organizations for the analyses of demand response and agricultural production efficiency, as noted on the author page.

Thank you again for your contributions thus far to this report, and we appreciate any comments you can provide on this draft. We have tried to include everyone we have communicated with over the past year on our contact list, but please feel free to circulate this to other colleagues at your organization if they were left off. Or, if you have a suggestion for another reviewer, please let me know. Also please let us know if you have any questions!

Best,

Maggie Molina, 202-507-4004
